To the Prospective Purchaser

A telegram received from Dodge Brothers, Detroit, Mich., to A. D. Hayes—"Any statements that Dodge Brothers have reduced or intend reducing prices is absolutely false. Dodge Brothers have always bought most advantageously and manufactured economically and to-day our manufactured stock is held at to-day's replacing values."

"Since our first cars were marketed seven years ago we have increased our prices less than any other manufacturer but one and during that time have added improvements which alone offset the increased price. We positively know that we are giving honest values and therefore can see no sound business justification for any price reduction."

A letter and newspaper clipping received by Charles Zaneloni, Jr., of North Main street related an accident in which Mr. Zaneloni's father, Charles Zaneloni, who with his wife and son, Joseph, has been spending the winter in Italy, narrowly escaped fatal injury while endeavoring to board an electric train. Mr. Zaneloni, in company with several friends, had been visiting in Porto Cervo and because of his slight lameness due to one foot, in which he suffered blood poison last year, he was little late in catching the train for Milano. Mr. Zaneloni fell between the cars and tracks. It seems he struck the middle rail, alive with electricity, which thrust him from his precarious position and nearly 30 feet away, undoubtedly saving his life thereby. "He was badly injured, however, and will be confined to a hospital for at least 30 days," the Italian newspaper clipping states. In answer to a cablegram by Charles Zaneloni, Jr., Saturday a response was received yesterday which stated that Mr. Zaneloni was recovering.
